

To Buy or Not to Buy? That is the question!

Spending wisely to purchase rich resources and materials

Overview

The aim of this session is to challenge traditional thinking about toys and equipment and ensure that creativity is employed when equipping the environment for young children

Who is it for?

The session is aimed at anyone working with children

Outcomes

By the end of this session participants will:

- Identify resources that will create maximum learning opportunities whilst fostering children's emotional well being
- Be able to choose pieces of equipment with many uses to ensure flexibility and a range of quality play opportunities
- Understand the need for natural and recycled resources within the setting to provide a rich sensory experience for children
- Understand the need for resources to respect and reflect diversity without compounding stereo typing or tokenism
- Think creatively about making the most of the budget and seeking alternative ways to build up a range of resources and learning materials
